About Food for Talk:

Good Food Good Farming (GFGF) helps groups and organizations across Europe to set up a Food for Talk visit in their area. Food for Talk aims at fostering meaningful dialogue between various actors during a day-visit at a food-related location. We invite you to organize a visit and discuss sustainable food with others - sharing perspectives, creating understanding and promoting collaboration!

Why act?

In September 2023, the EU Commission will propose a new legislation (Sustainable food system framework, SFS law) that could shape our food systems for the better. It's a critical moment in history to make a change - towards food and agriculture that work in favor of all people, biodiversity and climate! By participating in Food for Talk, you can make your voices heard!

How does it work?

The Food for talk visits take place in May 2023 at a place of your choice - a local farm, bakery, canteen, farmers markets or any other food-related location. As an organizer, you invite actors of your local food system and facilitate the discussion. The visits are an intimate occasion, enabling a dialogue where everyone feels heard.

A videographer will document the visits. The documentation will be used to create a powerful campaigning video, featuring perspectives from across Europe and increasing pressure for an ambitious SFS law later in the year.

- Are you passionate about healthy food and sustainable farming?
- Do you want to discuss with others on the future of our food?
- You know a local farm, bakery, canteen, community garden or food co-op worth visiting?
- Then join us for Food for Talk this May!

How can you join?

Become an organizer and host a day-visit in your area! From us, you will receive all the instructions and support you need:

- Info-graphics on sustainable food systems
- Guideline for the visit
- Moderation briefing with leading questions
- GFGF T-shirts, sticker and banner
- if applicable, financial support (up to 100 EUR)

To kick-off the Food for Talk initiative, we invite you to an online info-meeting on April 6th (10:00 AM), where we will provide more details and answer all your questions.
